

Ali Weatherby

Director, PeopleOps

About Me:

When I was in college, I wanted to be an Art Major but took a turn to the complete opposite - Office Administration. After obtaining my Associates Degree and Certification in Office Administration, I decided to continue my education journey into my Bachelor of Science in Business Administration. I was lucky enough to land my first HR position while I was going to school. I have been in the HR field ever since (10 years, this year) and have continued my personal growth path by taking on leadership level roles about five years into my career. In 2023, I decided to go back to school for my Masters Degree in Organizational Leadership and I will obtain this degree in November of 2025. I have found a passion in helping other leaders create experiences for employee's that they feel fulfilled, valued, and successful.

Hobbies and Interests

I love spending time with my family, being outdoors, learning new things, reading a good book, and shooting portrait photography

Why I Mentor:

I have had a lot of great mentors who have helped me learn about myself, develop new skills, and help guide me through difficult decisions. This type of relationship normally always turns into a friendship which is something I have always cherished. Being able to create this experience for others is something I feel honored and humbled to do.

Fun Facts

My favorite color is gray!
